Mexico's White House

President Diaz has moved his official residence out to the castle of Chapultepecwhich becomes once more, for the first time since the unlucky Maximilian and his charming wife lived there, the "white house" of Mexico.

Chapultepec is one of the loveliest spats imaginable, according to the Omaha Bec. It is unique in itself, as well as in its name, "the hill of the grasshopper."

Montezuma made his summer house here.

and an underground passage still in exist-ence was made by his direction to a point in the valley below, so that the Aztec chieftain could go and come as he pleased. Under the old cypress trees in the park the con-queror Cortez pitched his tent after the cele-brated "Noche Triste," or night of sorrow, when the Aztecs fell upon the Spaniards and massacred them.

Here Maximilian and the unfortunate Carlotta made love as they promenaded the magnificent marble terraces, which were built by order of the Austrian grandduke. Here the American army fought a bloody but decisive battle—one which has made the queer word Chapultepec familiar to American ears. One might relate numberless historical incidents connected with the spot, which abounds in memories, if space per-mitted, but the place itself demands some description.

Imagine a park of 1,000 acres covered with a dense growth of cypress, many of the trees 500 or 600 years old. The gray Spanish moss, festooned from limb to limb, adds to the picturesqueness of the scene. In the center of this park, which is surrounded by massive walls on three sides, the old aque duct forming a barrier on the fourth, rises a precipitous mound, if such a term will express the idea. This mound is composed principally of rock, and is probably 200 feet in height. There is but one road to the top, the summit being inaccessible except by this single route.

Upon the very apex stands the castle, completely covering the space so that no matter from which direction you look there is a sheer descent of nearly one hundred feet. The castle was built in sections, and presents no singular feature of architecture except a peculiar double staircase that seems to have no supports. When Maxmilan first saw the staircase he remarked to the architect that he would not trust his weight upon it, whereupon the designer, with his majesty's permission, brought a regiment of soldiers and marched them up and down the stairway ten abreast, thus demonstrating its strength. The staircase is the only one its kind in existence, and is built of white marble and brass. The terraces at Chapultepec are one of the sights of Mexico. They are floored with the sights of Mexico. They are floored with white marble, with brass balustrades, and tighted by electricity. The upper terrace extends the entire distance around the castle and is 24 feet broad. Lovely little flower gardens are located at frequent intervals, and here are blooming geraniums, fuchsias, heliotrope and mignonette, making the air rich with perfume and adding to the brighttle and is 24 feet broad. Lovely little flower gardens are located at frequent intervals, heliotrope and mignonetts, making the air rich with perfume and adding to the brightness of the scene. The furnishing of the castle for the recep-tion of President Diaz has been very elabor-The private apartments are in the northwestern wing. Each room is frescoed appropriately. The chess room has a chess room in the centre of the ceiling with the bishops, kings and queens in a merry dance about it, the pawns furnishing appropriate music from the four corners of the room.

The private reception parlor of the President's wife is "done up" in pink silk, with plush and brocade hangings to match. Every wall in the entire suit of rooms is covered with silk brocade instead of paper. The bed room occupied by the President and his wife was decorated and furnished at an expense of $30,000. The dining room has a seating capacity that is limited to thirty persons. The magnificent solid silver that ouce belonged to the Emperor Maxmilian is to be used, but the china and glassware are not in keeping with the royal magnific-nc- of the sliver; one of the soup tureens quires four men to carry it when filled.

President Diaz is greatly loved by his fol-lowers, and he will doubtless make the cas-tee of Chapultepec quite as brilliant as it was in the days when the Austrian and Em press Carlotta drove their eight gray horses and golden state charlot up the hill, and made the castle ring from alcove to gallery, from garrison to the entrance gates, with gayety. Mme. Disz is a most brilliant woman, and can entertain royalty should she take the notion. All Mexico has its eyes upon her, and it remains with her to add immeasurably to the gayeties of the capital.

will be in attendance at the Infirmary during the day from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. to receive the friends of the institution and such donations as they may bring or may be sent.

We hope it will be remembered that on this, the annual donation day of the Infirmary, supplies for the year in table and bed linen, blankets and other household articles, groceries and comforts of every kind, such as our sick need, and can only thus obtain, are looked for and hitherto have been received. In fact, the support of the institution for the remaining weeks of the year has always been, and is now, dependent on the amount of money and other supplies sent on the Thanksgiving donation day.

We ask much from the rich; something, more or less, from all, and that every merchant of our city will remember the various needs of such an instition and will spare us something from his stock.

will remember the various needs of such an insti-tion and will spare us something from his stock. We ask also an interest and personal attendance from the ministers of the churches, the trustees of the Alexandria Infirmsry, the Ministering Children's League and the various societies which are so earnestly laboring for these, the sick and suffering poor of our city.
